Wonder about the world leads to curiosity.
 Curiosity about the world leads to ingenuity.
 Ingenuity leads to problem solving with what you have.

Izimbra

The first friend Evan Stevens encounters in the Land of Crystal Burn. She is a Dreamhouse and one of the three types of sentient beings that live there. She is like a tree and rooted to the ground, she receives and sends messages through the Shadow Snakes.

The Pledge

The Pledge was created by Camp Dreamtree's founder, Evan Stevens, with the approval of Izimbra the Dreamhouse. They are words which guide each camper in all things:
"On my honor, I pledge to be kind, present, and to hold high respect for wonder. I will remember that I am small, but part of the whole."

The North House

Located in the coldest and oldest part of the camp is the "Fire house". It is responsible for the creation of fire, and the first recordings of the animals and plants in the land. This was Evan Steven's home when he was at Camp Dreamtree.

The South House

Placed in the warmest part of the camp and just at the edge of Lake Chevron; the "Water House" shows great prowess over all things sailing, fishing and food. Evan's aunt, Paloma, called the South house home, and there was always room at her table.

The East House

Located at the edge of the Caves of Recollection, where all of the camp's history and relics are stored. This is known as the "Scroll House", and has a dedication to all things written, especially those fantastic adventures that have been transcribed by former campers. Evan's cousin, David, called the East house home.

The West House

It is known as the "Wonder House" and is located in the youngest part of the forest where the smallest trees grow. This house reminds campers that every day is a gift and there is beauty in the smallest creature, even in those that can be dangerous. Evan's cousin, Jim, called the West House home.
